At its heart, yet in easy reach of the delights of Florence, Pisa and Siena, stands Castelfalfi. HOME TO THE MEDICIS
MEDIEVAL BIRTHPLACE OF CASTELFALFI

The village or 'Borgo' di Castelfalfi is a treasure trove spanning centuries.

With roots stretching back to the middle ages it was established in around 700AD, seven centuries before the Renaissance, by the Lombard King Faolfi. The Castle or 'Castrum', combined with the Faolfi's name, is believed to have led to 'Castelfalfi' which first appeared on a map in 754.

Some four hundred years later Castelfalfi was acquired by the Bishop of Volterra prior to becoming a residence of the Medici's in the 15th Century. As the centuries past and industrialisation took its hold, the Borgo castle and hunting villa experienced a slow decay as people drifted to the cities. It was only this century that the commitment was made to revive and restore a village that had been long considered a lost jewel of the Valdelsa area.

Today the Borgo is a beautiful village of winding streets, of unexpected vistas and hidden squares, of retailers and restaurants, boutiques, galleries, annual festivals and fiestas. A place to explore, a place to enjoy, a place to cherish. Standing proud in the landscape, the Borgo is the beating heart of the Castelfalfi estate.

A WORKING ESTATE, UNCHANGED
FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS.
AND A FEAST FOR THE EYES.

Castelfalfi is an estate at one with nature.

Straddling the border of Pisa and Florence it incorporates lakes, olive groves, vineyards, arable and recreational lands and our discreet collection of Casali.

There are almost 60 acres/25 hectares of vineyards, 30 of which have been planted in the last decade with the estate proud to deliver outstanding wines from Chianti Riserva DOCG to a stunning Sangiovese IGT.

Nearly 2,000 olive trees, including Frantoio and Pendolino varieties, have been added to the 8,000 plus trees that cover the hillsides whilst Castelfalfi's Olive Mill is part of the rural fabric, processing estate oils and those of hundreds of local landowners. The reminder of the arable land is given over to grains, fodder and legumes and the occasional truffle hunt.

Produce from across the estate is entirely organic and can be enjoyed by residents with wines and olive oil available from the estate's winery.

INTRODUCING I CASALI
THE FARMHOUSE COLLECTION

To own a Casale is to own a part of Tuscany's history. To restore one is to add to the rich tapestry of the landscape and to contribute to the continuation of that culture.

Our teams of architects and artisans work to your brief to restore each unique building to its original splendour, in the process creating wonderful homes tailored to you.

Marrying old and new there is an absolute focus on those elements that give that sense of identity, of time and of place. The mix of flagstone and wood floors and the use of terracotta, oak and travertine bring the landscape into the home achieving an understated and enduring beauty.

The classical arches and double doors. The impressive entrance halls with stone staircases that draw the eye up to the beautiful vaulted ceilings, the warmth of the wooden beams from the great trees that once grew on the estate. The ancient fireplaces restored to full working order for the winter nights. The windows and shutters that frame the untouched landscapes and let in the dreamy Tuscan light.

Properties range in size, each boasting high ceilings, beautiful living spaces, stunning feature fireplaces and expansive doors open out onto private terraces, pools and gardens, dining terraces and, of course, the breathtaking views.

Bathrooms are finished with an eye for detail and an acceptance only of perfection. And the bedrooms provide a sanctuary, cool and tranquil with owners typically specifying en-suite bathrooms and dressing areas, often accessed via stunning central and dual aspect living areas the form the heart of the upper floors.

Outside Casale may feature converted out-buildings and annexes, often with wood burning ovens and additional accommodation.

Castelfalfi has a limited selection of fully restored Casale, offered freehold and benefitting from full management services as required. Every restoration project is delivered by our expert teams and master craftsmen, ensuring a turnkey solution to realising your Tuscan dream.

At Castelfalfi every home is individual, all are without compare.

LIVE THE COUNTRY LIFE
AT YOUR OWN PACE

The estate of Castelfalfi is an extension of your home, to enjoy as you will. The sheer variety of landscapes, from woodlands and lakes to olive groves and open pastures, is reflected in the pastimes enjoyed by those who call Castelfalfi home.

Some choose to discover a new perspective from horseback - Castelfalfi is there to cater for your needs. Others take on the challenge of the hills by bicycle whilst more simply take time to walk, to experience and to enjoy the incredible diversity of flora and fauna on show.

Hunting on the estate's 1450 acre/600-hectare reserve ranges from mallard and pheasant to deer and boar whilst those with an interest in foraging can join local experts on a truffle hunt. Others look to immerse themselves in the local produce enjoying wine tasting classes, exploring olive oil production or learning to appreciate the tastes and smells of Tuscany at the Rosso Toscano Cooking School, before dining in the medieval castle.

At Castelfalfi time on your hands is always time well spent.
