HOME TO THE MEDICIS
MEDIEVAL BIRTHPLACE OF CASTELFALFI

The village or 'Borgo' di Castelfalfi is a treasure trove spanning centuries.

With roots stretching back to the middle ages it was established in around 700AD, seven centuries before the Renaissance, by the Lombard King Faolfi. The Castle or 'Castrum', combined with the Faolfi's name, is believed to have led to 'Castelfalfi' which first appeared on a map in 754.

Some four hundred years later Castelfalfi was acquired by the Bishop of Volterra prior to becoming a residence of the Medici's in the 15th Century. As the centuries past and industrialisation took its hold, the Borgo castle and hunting villa experienced a slow decay as people drifted to the cities. It was only this century that the commitment was made to revive and restore a village that had been long considered a lost jewel of the Valdelsa area.

Today the Borgo is a beautiful village of winding streets, of unexpected vistas and hidden squares, of retailers and restaurants, boutiques, galleries, annual festivals and fiestas. A place to explore, a place to enjoy, a place to cherish. Standing proud in the landscape, the Borgo is the beating heart of the Castelfalfi estate.

A WORKING ESTATE, UNCHANGED
FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS.
AND A FEAST FOR THE EYES.

Castelfalfi is an estate at one with nature.

Straddling the border of Pisa and Florence it incorporates lakes, olive groves, vineyards, arable and recreational lands, ancient farmhouses and our discreet collection of Castelfalfi Villas.

There are almost 60 acres/25 hectares of vineyards, 30 of which have been planted in the last decade with the estate proud to deliver outstanding wines from Chianti Riserva DOCG to a stunning Sangiovese IGT.

Nearly 2,000 olive trees, including Frantioio and Pendolino varieties, have been added to the 8,000 plus trees that cover the hillsides whilst Castelfalfi's Olive Mill is part of the rural fabric, processing estate oils and those of hundreds of local landowners. The reminder of the arable land is given over to grains, fodder and legumes and the occasional truffle hunt.

Produce from across the estate is entirely organic and can be enjoyed by residents with wines and olive oil available from the estate's winery.

INTRODUCING IL BORGO
THE MEDIEVAL COLLECTION

The Medieval Collection offers the opportunity to live in a hilltop village built more than a millennia ago. Today it offers a different type of living as part of a thriving community with its streets and squares offering, alongside its collection of boutiques and stores, a small selection of apartments, duplexes and houses, all painstakingly restored for modern living.

The vision, to deliver classic homes with every amenity has been realised through the restoration of the Borgo. Those details that tell the rich story behind each of these unique homes have been preserved, from the original terracotta flooring to door and wooden window frames. From the ancient beams and vaulted ceilings that feature in many of the homes, the shutters on the windows framing the most majestic of views of the streets beyond and the valleys below.

As with any village choice abounds, From romantic one-bedroom apartments that offer light filled living spaces, carefully crafted kitchens and modern bathrooms to larger duplexes and homes.

All enjoy well planned and open living areas, often featuring doors that open onto terraces or private gardens. Making the most of the climate and location these are the perfect spots for dining al fresco whilst drinking in the views. Many see main and ancillary bedrooms featuring en suite bathrooms, and private balconies, each unique.

The Italian flair for marrying ancient and modern is on display in Il Borgo. Despite each home being part of the rich history of Tuscany every modern convenience has been considered, and seamlessly integrated to often stunning effect.

All residences within the Medieval Collection have been restored to support air conditioning systems, wi-fi and satellite TV capabilities. Kitchens feature carefully concealed high-specification appliances, whilst bathrooms have been designed to make use of natural materials and marbles with updated fixtures and fittings.

The result are unique residences with personality, residences that demand to be called 'home' and sit at the centre of everything.

At Il Borgo there is a place and a space to suit you.
